DETAILED ACTION

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

3. Claims 1-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Blum et al.

Reference to Blum et al teaches claimed composition with the polymer containing carboxyl groups being component B which is taught with the same specific comonomers of the claims as seen in example 1. The molecular weight is within the claimed range since one of the reactants starts with a mw of 2450. Other properties are reasonable to presume present since the comonomers are the same, In re Fitzgerald Et Al, 205 USPQ 594. In column 4 the reference teaches the use of catalysts and the specific catalyst as claimed is taught in column 1. Solvent is also taught in column 4 to be the same as the polymerization solvent, which is exemplified as methoxypropyl acetate. It would, therefore, be prima facie obvious for one of ordinary skill in the art to choose solvent and catalyst as taught in the compositions of Blum et al absent evidence of unexpected results commensurate in scope to the claims.
